Distance Learning Studio Manager and Multimedia Technologist

CIM Distance Learning (DL) is looking for a creative, dynamic video professional to become our DL Studio Manager and Multimedia Technologist. We teach K-12 students all over North America and collaborate with conservatories worldwide.

This key individual will be responsible for the operation, configuration, maintenance, troubleshooting and upgrading of all DL video conference, video, audio, streaming, lighting, computer, network and other systems used in the department. The Technologist is also responsible for the creation of electronic multimedia materials and providing technical support for all DL functions and events.

Qualified candidate will have a Bachelors degree and 1 to 3 years paid experience in video production and post production. Operating experience with video-conference, internet streaming and other distance-learning technologies preferred. A self generated interest in expanding your skills and knowledge is essential.

During an on-site interview and evaluation, you will be asked to:

- Set-up a single camera interview with supplemental, 3 point lighting.
- Execute a short editing exercise using Apple Final Cut Pro.
- Initiate a simple DVD export using Apple DVD Studio Pro.
- Pre-visualize multi-camera coverage of a chamber orchestra.

Please submit the following materials online at www.cim.edu/positions

cover letter
résumé including salary requirements
3 professional references
samples of video production, editing and DVD authoring work

Alternatively, media samples may be submitted on a DVD
